Screening method and the other 40 candidates

Candidates were screened against five gates: (1) official/current evidence, (2) no known duplicate, (3) moderate award and selectivity, (4) high-school relevance or useful senior-to-college coverage, and (5) enough rule detail to support cautious matching. Official program pages, rules/FAQs, application portals, PDFs, and official winner announcements were preferred. Forty were rejected for known duplication, discontinuation or stale verification, flagship/full-ride scale, awards above the target band, sweepstakes/marketing structure, or portfolio/provider overconcentration.

Duplicate-check results

- Known-existing seed file: checked. The Gates Scholarship, Coca-Cola Scholars Program, and Elks Most Valuable Student were present and are rejected candidates, not recommendations.
- SQL snapshot: blocked. scholarmatch-production.sql repeatedly returned ETIMEDOUT because the file-provider placeholder would not hydrate.
- Configured database: blocked. .env likewise timed out, and no local application server was listening; credentials could not be loaded for the required read-only queries.
- Required next control: after hydration, run exact and normalized/fuzzy checks on scholarship name, provider, and canonical application URL, then repeat immediately before any transactional import. No recommended record should be treated as duplicate-cleared until that passes.

Field-handling notes

The companion workbook contains the requested ScholarMatch fields for every recommendation. “Not published” means reliable evidence was not found in the reviewed official material. Numeric zero is not used as a substitute for unknown. Multi-state, multi-citizenship, award-specific, and identity lists remain explanatory text rather than inaccurate single-value filters. Conditional criteria and application friction—including accounts, nominations, recommendations, interviews, voting, tax documentation, sponsor routing, fees, videos, portfolios, references, and publicity/rights terms—are captured in the application and unresolved columns where known.
